Giant Bottoms grow sparks fierce dislike

ARCATA BOTTOM – It was as though two vastly different projects were under discussion last week during the Humboldt County Planning Commission's consideration of its final agenda item last week.

One project was a smart, well-regulated and scrupulously managed agricultural enterprise that would help support a major local employer, make large contributions to the tax base, stimulate the cannabis economy and have little impact on areas around the already industrialized property where it would be sited.

The other project was a gross industrial intrusion into ag land causing far-ranging environmental damage, spewing pesticides, generating noise, consuming inordinate water and energy resources, increasing crime, intensifying traffic, destroying the quality of life for neighboring residents while corporatizing Humboldt's cannabis industry and disenfranchising independent growers.

In fact, they were the same agenda item – the Arcata Land Company's proposed Conditional Use Permit for a 22.9-acre cannabis cultivation operation on Sun Valley Floral Farms' property on the Arcata Bottom.

Rate drop lags, cases plateau, more doses arrive

HUMBOLDT - As the state tells counties to submit vaccination expansion plans, Humboldt has been described as a county whose COVID-19 testing positivity rate is "lagging" others.

A renowned infectious disease specialist commented on Humboldt's situation during a March 18 "coronavirus response" town hall forum hosted by Senator Mike McGuire.

The region-wide forum's panel included Dr. Timothy Brewer of the Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA, who reported that California's COVID-19 testing positivity rate has dropped to two percent. "So we're doing much better than we were two short months ago," he said.

"That having been said, in the northern counties, like Humboldt County, you're running at about 2.9 that case counts, while dipping from percent and Sonoma's at about 2.4 percent positivity," he continued. "So while you're better off than where you were in January, you are lagging a little bit behind the rest of the state – so we still need to be aware that coronavirus is in our community."

In a media availability video on the day of the forum, Dr. Ian Hoffman, Humboldt's health officer, said the county was "just below the threshold" of moving into a more restrictive COVID-19 risk tier the previous week.

Although he had expressed "cautious optimism" during an update to the Board of Supervisors that week, he acknowledged during the video a winter surge, "Haven't continued to come down – we've plateaued."

Coronavirus variants are emerging and two in California - including one that's ramping up in Humboldt, have been added to the U.S. Center for Disease Control's list of Variants of Concern or those that have worrisome mutations.

LAFCo reduces annexation to Arcata's original request

Kevin L. Hoover MAD RIVER UNION

ARCATA - The Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCo) last week reconsidered its controversial January 20 decision to annex not just the land needed for Danco's Creek Side Homes subdivision and Ennes Park on the Arcata Bottom, but five additional parcels.

After hearing from the appellant, property co-owner Sean Armstrong, other property owners located within the additional annexation plus land use activists, LAF-Co's commissioners rescinded the expanded annexation, shrinking it from 76.7 acres back to the 21.6 acres requested by the City of Arcata.

The property owners and others had objected on grounds that they hadn't been properly noticed or consulted prior to the annexation. The City of Arcata and others held that bringing the additional agricultural land within city limits put it at higher risk of eventual development. Were it to stay in the county, the city could easily withhold utility services, rendering development impossible.

Portia Bramble, executive director of the North Coast Growers Association (NCGA), said annexing the aglands could impair their use for food production and jeopardize local food security, and opposed their inclusion into the City of Arcata.

LAFCo Commissioner and Third District Supervisor Mike Wilson said that given the supervisors' disinterest ANNEXATION ❖ PAGE 6

ARCATA – For many, the COVID-19 pandemic brought new clarity to what is important and what isn't in everyday life. One consequence was fresh appreciation for those whose jobs require daily contact with the disease-riddled public.

Among the most essential and courageous – and not highly compensated – workers are those who staff local supermarkets, putting their health at added risk. Last week the City Council took up the legally problematic matter of hazard pay for grocery store employees.

The hazardous duty compensation would take the form of an extra $3 or $4 per hour on top of regular wages.

Councilmembers said they received extraordinary amounts of comment on the proposal from all sides. And while they were sympathetic, the matter is fraught with complications. Several communities have attempted to require supplemental pay for food store workers. Legal challenges from grocers were quick to crop up, with some closing stores in response.

Questions include what size stores should be affected; whether other types of stores such as large drugstores ARCATA - Pacific Outfitters owner Aaron Ostrom last week announced the closure of the store's Arcata branch.

Said Ostrom, "Almost 20 years ago I left the hotel and grocery industry to start working for my pops at the Arcata location, back when it was the New Outdoor Store on the Plaza. Sad to see Arcata close for good, but at the same time we (Pacific Outfitters) will be growing and expanding in other ways. Stay tuned..."

That announcement was followed quickly by one from Humboldt State University, announcing the migration of the HSU Bookstore to Pacific Outfitters' former G Street location. The HSU news release:

Street. The store is expected to open in its new location by July 1.

The move is a big win for the university and the community. Its new location will provide numerous benefits that students, community members and visitors have been asking for.

HSU has been working with the community to find ways for students, many of whom travel from more urban areas, to connect with and feel welcome in the community.

The new bookstore location will help. With HSU goods, and the ability to hold student and community-centered events like guest lectures and mixers, students will have a welcoming space in the heart of Arcata.

The new bookstore will have a small coffee and tea lounge for customers to enjoy while shopping. It will also provide easy access to the Plaza improves every time a new business moves in.

The bookstore is sure to be a draw for both locals and visitors to stock up on Humboldt State spirit. As we work to grow out of the pandemic's recession, having the university invest by directly filling the largest retail vacancy caused by COVID-19 is a huge boost. Go Jacks!'

The move also opens up the current bookstore space, which students have been requesting to use for lounge space, activities, and entertainment. The bookstore will maintain its current warehouse space on campus for receiving and picking up textbooks, along with handling textbook rentals, and the university is exploring delivering textbooks to students in residence halls. The College Creek Marketplace on campus will continue to sell HSU Bookstore items in the store and expand upon the current selection.

Follett will continue managing the bookstore, bringing their specially branded HSU merchandise and other items for store visitors. And HSU will be looking at working with College of the Redwoods and local high schools to carry some of their branded items to create a shared community. The bookstore will continue selling HSU merchandise in Eureka's Clarke Museum.

The unexpected opportunity for the new location arose very recently and HSU was alerted that Pacific Outfitters was looking to lease its Arcata space. Pacific Outfitters will continue operating their stores in Eureka and Ukiah.

OBITUARY

eacher, actor, comedian – Charlie lived a life of creativity and fun. He was a talented, quirky performer, and critical thinker. He was kind, generous, sometimes exasperating, and a loyal friend.

Charlie was born in Manhattan, to Mollie and Julius Gilbert, on April 12, 1944. He and his younger sister, Annette, grew up in Riverdale, and he lived in New York City until 1992 when he moved to L.A. with his first wife. He taught special education students in NYC and L.A. public schools for over 20 years.

Charlie sought the joke in every moment. He earned a master's degree in media studies from The New School of Social Research and produced dramatic radio documentaries for WBAI and NPR. He also created comedic characters who appeared on WBAI shows.

In L.A., he performed in theatre, student films and standup comedy.

In 2006, he married Linda Slater, his second wife, and in 2009, they moved to Arcata. Charlie performed with Jeff DeMark and nurtured a burgeoning Humboldt comedy scene.

He moved back to L.A. right before the pandemic to be closer to family. He suffered a hemorrhagic stroke on February 5, 2021, and died the following morning in San Diego.

Charlie leaves behind his loving wife Linda; his sister Annette; his daughter Sarah; his stepdaughter and granddaughter and many friends who loved him deeply.

The stage has gone dark, but if you listen closely, laughter dances across the sky as we all mourn this loss. (Further info: Charlie-Memorial44@gmail.com.)

should be included; the level of premium pay; if credit should be given for voluntary payments; the duration of the requirement; and the legal risk.

The idea was proposed by the United Food and Commercial Workers labor union. Its request was for an ordinance limited to grocery stores; an initial 90-day period unless Humboldt moved to the less restrictive Yellow Tier; that store which employ 500 or more nationwide and 15 or more in Arcata pay $4 per hour extra; and that stores that employ more than 25 but fewer than 500 in Arcata would pay $3 more per hour.

During public comment, the council heard from a grocery store owner who said her business is bearing added costs for employee COVID protection, and that the proposal would result in layoffs. But union representatives who called in said supermarkets have racked up record profits during the pandemic, and claimed that their workers face up to 40 percent added risk of contracting COVID-19. They urged adoption of the hazard or "hero" pay.

Councilmember Brett Watson asked for more detailed information on which to base a decision. He said hazard pay could be onerous for smaller grocers, and was concerned about passing a well-intentioned measure, then being sued. Several cities have been sued by grocer interests, with a suggestion that they could wind up being liable for the extra wages paid to workers under their ordinances. "We have several lawsuits as it is already," Watson said.

Councilmember Stacy Atkins-Salazar said that "At first glance," the idea holds strong appeal, given the sacrifice of grocery workers. But she recognized the difficulties business owners have staying open, and their fragility. "We really need to go in depth on the financials of some of these businesses we're talking about," she said. "I would hate for us to lose any of our stores or people to be out of work because of this."

Councilmember Emily Grace Goldstein supports the ordinance. After broad scoping with grocers and workers, she said she was "open to exploring options" but wanted the employees to make a wage commensurate with their risk. She said the formula should be based on number of employees, and that including drugstores in the ordinance "makes sense."

"This isn't about punishing businesses," Goldstein said. "It's about honoring employees."

Councilmember Sarah Schaefer supports the ordinance, and said a 90-day effective interval that would expire if the Yellow Tier kicks in would be appropriate.

After more discussion, the council voted 5-0 to have staff research the possibilities, including legal risk, and return with viable options.

asking all regions in California to prepare for an influx of 4 million vaccine doses per week into the state.

All jurisdictions will submit vaccination expansion plans by the end of this month. A statewide push to "greatly expand vaccination operations" will follow, Mc-Guire said.

The expansion will start in May and continue into June, he continued, adding that "we're looking at a significant expansion."

The "shorter-term outlook" is not as promising. McGuire said that over the next three weeks, the flow of vaccines into the state will "remain fairly flat," with about 1.8 million vaccines expected each week.

California's vaccination pace has picked up, however. McGuire said that in the 2.5 months leading to March, 10 million vaccine doses were administered. In the two weeks prior to the forum, three million shots were given.

Despite the improvement, McGuire added, "We know that we must do better and I can promise you we will."

Single-system shift

Also on the panel, Lori Nezhura of the state's Office of Emergency Services said the state is preparing for increased vaccine supply by contracting with third-party providers for operation of "geographically diverse mega-sites" and mobile clinics.

The shift into a "single system" includes a state-level appointment website, myturn.ca.gov.

During a question and answer session, McGuire said many of the forum's online audience of 2,700 people were asking about when residents aged 50 to 64 will be eligible for vaccination.

McGuire said that's expected in May and Nezhura agreed. "You heard it, I heard it - our president did say that he's going to encourage states, starting May 1, to vaccinate everyone," she said.

Although she qualified that it's "hard to say" whether there will be enough vaccine supply do it, Nezhura said dropping age limits is being "actively discussed" and is underway in some counties.

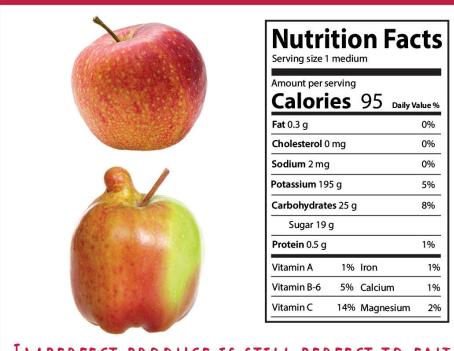

"But in the next month – and definitely two - we will undoubtedly see that age limit come down," she continued.

The county confirmed 64 new COVID-19 cases last week but total hospitalizations remained at 135. There was one new death, of an elderly person, bringing that total to 35.

Threatened western snowy plovers are nesting – respect their habitat

FRIENDS OF THE DUNES ARCATA - Breeding season is here for North Coast

populations of western snowy plovers.

For the federally threatened Pacific coast population of these birds, March until mid-September is the most important time of vear: time to find a mate, lay and incubate eggs, then teach the young how to survive on their own.

Along the North Coast, snowy plovers are starting to pair up and nesting will begin any day.

These small tan and white shorebirds – about the size of a sparrow – live on open, sandy beaches and dunes. Invertebrates make up their diet. They hunt for small bugs like sand hoppers and flies in piles of seaweed and debris along the high tide line.

Snowy plovers have large eves that help them spot their prey and predators. They prefer to live in areas with sparse, native vegetation so that they can see predators approaching. They are always on alert for ravens, falcons, or skunks lurking nearby.

Although it may not seem like it, dogs, horses, and their people are just as dangerous to snowy plovers

CITY OF ARCATA PHOTOS if they get too close.

When visiting the beach this time of year, if you're lucky enough to see a snowy plover, they will likely be on their own or in small, spread out groups (those larger flocks of shorebirds probing the wet sand for food are lings and sandpipers). More likely, though, you won't see a plover if it's hunkered down on a nest: they sit still as statues and do a great job camouflaging their nest area.

mostly made up of sander-

To ensure the adults, eggs and future chicks have the best possible chance of survival, beach visitors can help by following a few simple guidelines:

- Respect all areas posted or roped-off for the protection of wildlife.
- When walking on the beach, stay on the wet properly and do not inadvertently (or intentionally) feed wildlife.

- If you're on a beach that allows vehicles, drive low and slowly, staying on the hard-packed sand below the high tide line.
- · Avoid flying kites or other hovering objects near plover-nesting habitat.

To balance recreational opportunities and wildlife protection along the North Coast, beach activities may be restricted to certain areas during the critical nesting time, March 15 through Sept. 15.

You can do your part by knowing and adhering to location-specific rules and regulations.

CITY OF ARCATA

ARCATA - Spring is here, and the Environmental Services Department would like to offer some tips for community members on how to harmlessly appreciate the beauty of native wildflowers growing in Arcata's natural spaces.

When visiting the Arcata Community Forest, one of the first promising signs that winter is passing is coming across the beautiful white clusters of Pacific trillium (Trillium ovatum). These simple, elegant flowers are ephemeral bloomers, which means they flower for a short period of time and go dormant until the next year.

While Pacific trillium are beautiful, they are also fragile. Touching or picking trillium can injure or even kill this native wildflower, so it is important that community members appreciate their beauty from a distance.

Picking these wildflowers have harmful impacts that can damage the plant so it is unable to regrow in the future. Picking trillium also negatively impacts insects and animals who rely on the flower for food or protective cover. In order to ensure trillium blooms in the Arcata Community Forest for generations to come, the Environmental Services Department has a few tips for flower lovers on how to appreciate wildflowers without harming the plants:

Peace, love & old friends

❖ MCKINLEYVILLE

any of us lost a dear friend this past week. Carol Davis passed peacefully at 11:15 a.m. March 13, in the home she loved with her family, at the time predicted by her caregivers.

I wouldn't be surprised for a second, that she chose the time and date to leave, giving all of us another a glimpse of a remarkable woman, full of surprises and the unexpected all her life. The gospel music she sang and loved accompanied her on her way.

We met in the sixties, running around Humboldt State as young women having no real idea who were or what we were doing. We married, had some crazy stupid jobs, enjoyed marvelous opportunities and adventures, with and without our kids.

We gathered friends and memories that lasted all throughout her life and are still a part of mine. Arcatans will mourn her passing and miss her in the community more than most will realize. As she is remembered by those who loved her and by the huge extended family she created, cry a little, celebrate her, and laugh out loud.

Carol was part of the McKinleyville Senior Center in her last few years, riding what we called the Bingo Bus to a specialized exercise class to help keep us moving. She always greeted everyone as if she hadn't seen you in years. Her goodbye was the same, too... "Peace and Love" followed by a familiar peace sign. I still remember when she dropped "Tie Dye."

Loosing cherished friends is something most seniors don't often talk about because our departure is expected as our time grows short. But as our dearest friends, along with chunks of our history go with them, it's a different kind of grieving.

It is the natural order of things. But those of us who survive the everchanging, and expected loss of those friends we love, the memories have lived with us for a long, long time and ex- Love from me and my dear pressing those feelings is friend Carol.

Partly because we have memories that fade and then pop up at unexpected moments. I know this happens to everyone experiencing loss of someone you've loved, but for seniors it's just passed off as "senior moments." Ever wonder why there's always Kleenex and handkerchiefs in our purses and pockets? If you see someone of a certain age crying, sometimes nothing hurts, they're just remembering a part of their life that they'd forgotten until that moment. Tears of joy and sadness mingle to honor those memories.

If there's an older person in your life, in your family or neighborhood, please ask them about those memories and listen. Not only are you collecting stories that will make you laugh or astound you, but you're also doing the one thing every aging person I've ever met craves... honoring their life in the simplest, easiest way by giving them the respect they've earned. Bring a tissue or a hankie, you'll need it.

The McKinleyville Senior Center is working to reopen as soon as it's safe for the population we serve. Lots of changes, cleaning, new COVID compliant furniture and excitement as vaccinations are making progress in controlling the COVID spread and hopefully to regain our lives soon.

Please get vaccinated. Everyone around you will sigh with relief. And, of course, we are still collecting and raising funds to keep operating. Thanks again for filling up our Spring Green jars all over town and your jars of coins! I feel so fortunate to have picked this generous community to call home. Thank you to Kevin,

Jack and Ted for your ongoing support for the senior community and giving us information and entertainment in print. Call Patti (707) 845-2817 if you want a visit from "the Coin Collector." I'm grabbing a tissue to send you a wish for Peace and Senior Planner Rodney Yandell outlined the project, and its physical features. These include nearly 771,000 square feet of outdoor "light deprivation" or hoop house grows, over 147,000 square feet of mixed-light cultivation and 83,000-plus feet of nursery space. Three ancillary support buildings would include 62,100 square feet, while two stormwater detention basins would contain 0.8 acre feet of capacity, with an onsite wastewater treatment system.

Water for the grow – 17 million gallons per year - would come from a permitted groundwater well, and electrical power from PG&E. Some 116 employees are anticipated, with access from Foster Avenue to the site, which is zoned Heavy Industrial with a Qualified Combing Zone and a General Plan designation of Ag Exclusive. Construction would be carried out this year and next.

Yandell said all impacts cited by critics have been studied and well mitigated. Added conditions of approval control odor and noise. He recommended approval of the project's Mitigated Negative Declaration and adoption of the Conditional Use Permit.

Sun Valley Floral Farms CEO Lane Devries, who also operates Arcata Land Co., described the project as an inclusive boon to the county which would allow Sun Valley to remain a large Humboldt employer with 450 jobs, a nearly $28 million payroll and spending $12 million with Northern California vendors.

Devries said domestic flower growers are struggling against foreign competition, with some going under. "We want to continue to be a flower farmer in Arcata," he said.

Devries said he has no intention of becoming a cannabis grower, and disclosed that a cannabis management company called Headwaters has been hired to operate the grow. Headwaters CEO/Founder Tristan Strauss said he takes community concerns seriously, will "address these impacts head on" and would consult with community members to address any issues. He said the project will "further our long-term vision for unity and partnership across the cannabis community."

Land Use consultant Jordan Main said the project is in keeping with the site's historic use as an industrial facility, located far from sensitive facilities such as churches, schools and parks with all lighting, odor and noise impacts scientifically mitigated.

Despite assurances, skeptics were not assuaged. Neighbors, cannabis advocates and land use activists responded to the happy depictions with a wall of objections.

Karen Davidson said Sun Valley's past performance didn't give her confidence in its promises for the new grow operation.

Natalynne DeLapp, executive director of the Humboldt County Growers Alliance, said the 23-acre grow is far in excess of the eight-acre limit specified in Land Use Ordinance 2.0. She stressed that use permits are not automatically granted, but are discretionary. She said the Planco should reject what she called a "bloated monstrosity, arrogant and out of touch in its assumptions of legality and does not conform with the vision of Humboldt's cannabis industry as craft, local or independent as we have collectively established between our laws, policies and programs."

DeLapp asked that the project be reduced to eight acres or less, that mixedlight cultivation be prohibited and that the lighting scheme be revisited.

A 27th Street resident said the project is "wrong on so many levels," and that Sun Valley has been a bad, promise-breaking corporation that has disregarded its responsibilities to the neighborhood over traffic and visual blight. "Please don't pass this project," she said. "Don't ruin the Arcata Bottoms."

Dave Dickinson, an indie cannabis grower, said the Planco had given an infomercial for the project – an objection echoed by others who said the county is acting as an advocate rather than an impartial judge. He called the project "out of scale and out of proportion to what Humboldt County is about."

A series of other speakers listed light, noise, odor, pesticides, traffic and quality of life impacts, and said an unfair process had sidelined citizens from fairly participating. Some demanded that an EIR be required.

With the hour growing late and an abundance of queued speakers still to speak, the hearing was continued to April 1.

in protectively zoning ag land, he wasn't convinced that they would be better protected by staying in the county, which has developgreenlighted ment-friendly zoning.

"The idea that the county has stronger policies for ag preservation than the City of Arcata I just don't think metes out in reality," he said.

Other commissioners agreed with his assessment.

But, Wilson said, he was comfortable with contracting the annexation back to that originally proposed by the city. He said he wished he had the kind of support for ag protection being expressed at the LAFCo meeting during his struggles with fellow supervisors to gain such protections.

Community Development Director David Loya said that despite claims by farmers, existing ag uses would be allowed by the city were their lands annexed and that the city would work with them to ensure continuity and compliance.

Ultimately, Wilson moved to adopt a draft motion to approve the reconsideration request and to annex only the parcels originally proposed by the City of Arcata, to develop a Memorandum of Understanding between the city and county over maintenance of Foster Avenue, and reorganize the Janes Creek Storm District.

The motion unanimously.

She added, "We agreed to these terms under duress, with no other option to clear our name or have a farm."

But during a public comment period, Michael Fields, a Warren Creek Road resident who was part of the community meeting with the Costas, gave a different account of what had happened.

"The process worked and what is before you today is the solution that was arrived at," he said, adding that "a formal apology was never a condition of this agreement."

He thanked the Costas and his neighbors for their willingness to negotiate and said that "the process that was proposed actually worked and worked well."

Letters to the county Planco about the Arcata Land Co. grow

Note: The Humboldt County Planning Commission received numerous letters regarding the proposed 22.9-acre Arcata Land Co. cannabis grow operation on the Arcata Bottom. Below is a sampling. These and more are readable on the county Planco's website. –Ed.

Wrong on many levels

I am writing in opposition to the 23 acre mega grow proposed by The Arcata Land Company. This project is wrong for the location on so many levels! Please look into the environmental impacts to the neighborhood as well as the long term impacts to the planet (23 acres of hoop houses and five tons of plastic landfill each year) This project is out of scale. And please ignore the ridiculous claim from the applicant that they need to do this to stay afloat. They started this application long before Covid impacted the cut flower business. This is a greedy corporate attempt to get into the weed industry and the impact on our community is way out of balance! Please vote NO

Thank You, Dan Tangney Arcata resident, 43 years

No impact? Please.

Hello, I'm sorry I missed your advertisement for comment on this terrible idea.

I'd appreciate learning how this project was justified in receiving a Negative Declaration. I'm stymied at how a 22.9 acre grow has no environmental impact?

I'm especially interested in the light and smell pollution issue. But the planning of pesticide runoff into Liscom Slough is also important.

Especially since the location has two elementary schools within less than a diagonal mile (On Janes), and a Catholic Church. Thank Yyou for your assistance.

Jennifer F. Taylor

Arcata P.S. Also, is there any access to the actual permit?

So many huge impacts

I am writing to you again to voice my OPPOSITION to the proposed cannabis mega grows on Foster Avenue and the Bottoms of Arcata!!

Here are some of the reasons/concerns:

- WATER! The negative impact such a project/s would have on the areas' residential wells that people (me) use for their Only source of water for households; the pollution of toxic chemicals and fertilizers that WOULD negatively compromise the aquifer via groundwater seepage and runoff; the depletion of the aquifer by the proposed onsite well/s in using HUGE extreme amounts of water; the negative impacts on the river by same runoff and seepage.
- Toxins in the environment; large amounts of chemicals, fertilizers, fungicides, fuel runoff all into the groundwater, aquifer and air, exhausts from boiler use, potential (probable) spills of all the above. The list goes on!

- Visual and noise pollution; a blight on our beautiful Arcata Bottoms and pastoral area- such huge grow/s would Ruin that forever.
- Traffic! We already deal with too much increased traffic from Sun Valley, people taking the 'back way' to and from Eureka, 2 schools, farm and ranching vehicles, etc.
- Residents and local community enjoy Foster Ave. and area/s for recreation from walking, running, bicycling, etc. Plus the new "Creekside" development in the future works. WAY too much traffic for the area!!
- Negative impact/s on values of neighboring properties. This is a GIVEN.
- Security of the neighborhoods. A large cannabis grow/s will surely attract negative elements and compromise the health and safety of our peaceful neighborhoods.
- DUMB IDEA! The coastal environment is a terrible place to cultivate cannabis; it's too damp, not enough sunshine, it molds! They'd need to use toxic fungicides, supplemental lighting, mega fans and heaters, etc. There are far better places to grow cannabis commercially, inland areas in the sunshine that would be easier, healthier and not have the Many huge negative irreversible impacts this project would have on our community, environment and natural resources.
- I appreciate the countys' desire and need for the tax revenue and fiscal impact this could have from a large project/s such as this and also the owners of the proposed project/s thinking it could be a good business venture BUT, this is just a BAD IDEA all around.

Sincerely, Ramona Fair Arcata

An EIR is necessary

Mega cannabis grows are popping up all over California. These industrial operations have been approved by planning departments without proper notification to, or response from their local communities. Residents are up in arms; now subjected to living with the stench of skunk, light pollution, noise from fans; a huge unexpected change in quality of life.

I am concerned about pesticides, air quality, Loss of natural beauty, Light pollution, Loss of prime ag land, schools in proximity to proposed grow, Increased traffic and noise, Loss of the quality of life in the bottoms, Lowering of property values, and water usage as results of this mega grow.

I am in opposition of the Arcata Bottoms, Sun Valley Bulb Farm is proposing the ninth largest cannabis grow in North America. 22.9 acres, 193 hoops houses, one million square feet of marijuana plants; equal to 17 football fields. The public was not informed.

Only five people received letters regarding this on January 26, 2021. This a huge project that can cause irreversible damage to our community. It requires an Environmental Impact Statement not the Mitigated Negative Declaration they have submitted.

Sincerely, Anne Braak-Katz

This grow's a no-go

I was shocked to learn of the recent annexation of land to develop the Foster Avenue housing and senior living Memory Services Complex. My major concern is for the lack of adequate roadways transporting the over 150 new cars — this will significantly and negatively impact current residents of the Jane's Creek street area, as well as those along Foster Avenue. This area does not have the infrastructure to sustain the new development.

Then came the news reports regarding a major grow planned by the owner of Sun Valley Farms. Lane reported he has had a difficult year — too bad he failed to obtain the Paycheck Protection Program! (or maybe he just didn't mention this).'

Very few Arcata residents, (not sure where Lane lives, but this grow scene is not likely in his own backyard), have gone through 2020 unscathed. Many local business have had to give up; many more are hanging on only due to the financial support provided by COVID relief and state/local grants.

Lane wants to grow because "it's been financially difficult." Whine...

I protest the permit he is seeking; I protest the NEGATIVE DECLARATION attached to the current permit to grow FLOWERS.

Floral farms everywhere are suffering and they are not allowed to grow cannabis in lieu of flowers. My own business has gone down, yet I nor my neighbors are growing cannabis to make a quick buck.

This man has no concern for the negative and long-term impact his scene will cause to the local residents; evidently not above a bribe, Lane delivered flowers to some "neighbors."

The City of Arcata has laws still on the books prohibiting the locals from growing more than their "fair share" of plants. How many local permitted and unpermitted "Mom and Pop" grows will go under if Sun Valley grows millions of cannabis plants? Too many.

The dilution of the Arcata brand name and Humboldt County crops alone is enough to warrant stopping this major mistake. Please consider the many instead of the one.

Prevent this grow, please.

Jennifer F Taylor Arcata Resident since 2007

A terrible precedent

Regarding: Sun Valley's application to locate an over-sized industrial cannabis growing operation in the Arcata Bottoms next to people's homes: ARCATA LAND CO APPLICATION # 12255

As a home-owner and a 50-year county resident, I am strongly opposed to this application and this project.

Locating a large industrial cannabis operation with industrial-sized noise, odor, and other negative impacts next to people's homes is poor planning and unacceptable.

Impacts to the residents would include: health impacts due to noxious odors and emissions, reduced property values, reduced ground water availability; unacceptable noise levels; increased traffic; and heavy negative impacts on the viewshed, the land, and the water.

If the Planning Commission approves this project, it will set a terrible precedent and be a threat to all Humboldt county residents in the unincorporated areas, knowing that our county Planning Commission finds it acceptable to locate enormous cannabis grows – with all the accompanying negative impacts – next to people's homes.

The state of California says that planning commissioners shall "act in the public interest." In this case, the public's interest is to allow us all the quiet enjoyment of our homes. PLEASE REJECT THIS APPLICATION.

Inadequate info

I am a resident who lives less than a mile away from this proposed project and am very concerned about the lack of transparency and insufficient information regarding the harms this project will cause if allowed to go forward.

I am concerned in particular about the odors, pollution and noise this project will generate for me and in the nearby Arcata downtown areas, the negative impact on property values likely to result from these impacts.

There is not enough information provided in the MNR to understand the magnitude of these possible impacts. This neighborhood is frequently impacted by foggy weather and studies have shown pollutants like pesticides and fumes are carried in fog to a much greater extent.

As a senior citizen and retiree, I moved here from Shasta county specifically to avoid the fires and the smell of cannabis being cultivated nearby my home. I am concerned that this project will have the same impact on me since I live downwind from this site.

I am requesting a full environmental impact report to address these concerns.

Thank you, Suzanne Hurley

A pro-grow Planco

I participated in the last Planning Commission meeting on March 18, hoping to voice my opposition to the planned mega cannabis grow by Sun Valley, just outside the city limits and right nearby multiple neighborhoods, schools, recreational settings, and churches.

How is it appropriate to PLAN a mega grow into a burgeoning neighborhood? I was shocked to witness a member of the commission give essentially an infomercial about this proposed project.

It is my understanding that the

It is my understanding that the Planning Commission officials are hired to examine projects and proposals and to communicate with the local residents and cities most affected by the proposals to ensure that they are deciding on plans that represent EVERYONE'S best interest.

Correct me if I am wrong but it is not their job to SELL those projects to the public. Especially when they are aware of the massive public opposition. Those stake holders wishing to sell the proposal can do so on their own.

I have lost confidence in Rodney Yandell's ability to examine projects with a neutral and objective eye and to remember he was hired to represent and consider all the citizens being impacted when he is reviewing new projects.

This project would change the green belt of Arcata FOREVER. And the City Council was not even consulted, and the vast majority of the neighbors were not even notified. Shame.

My Pete story

It had been one of those days. The kind that over shadows happy. I was in Arcata and stopped by Wildberries for a few groceries before heading back to Kneeland. As I was contemplating what brand of garbanzo beans I should buy, a voice at the end of the aisle spoke in a long, drawn-out sigh, "Ohhhhhhhhhh."

I turned to see a giant of a man. Putting the palms of his hands up to his cheeks, he danced toward me. He then placed one of his hands over his heart and said, "You are so beautiful." And that was it. He gave a giggle, twirled around and headed back towards the front of the store. I remember other sightings of him after that; The Oyster Festival, Farmers Market.

Thank you, Mad River Union, for keeping us informed of his journey (Pete gravely ill in Ore., getting hospice care. March 10, 2021). Pete is a nostalgic character; an illustrious individual, who was once an icon in our community.

Little did Pete know our chance meeting at the supermarket that day shifted my reality. I'm sure a lot of ladies heard that same phrase from him in his travels. Yet-it was like he was at the right place at the right time. Uplifted and smiling, I placed my groceries into the trunk of my car and headed home.

Thank you, Pete, for the bright light you were in that moment when I needed it the most!

Trinidad Chamber considers merging with McKinleyville llie Jones, executive director of ally held an annual town Christmas party, Commerce, and Board of Direc-

Mel Ward, John Lee and Chantele Leatherwood, with McKinleyville Chamber of Commerce representative Charles Caldwell, held a Zoom meeting last week to discuss the future of the Trinidad Chamber.

The Trinidad Chamber has held the Trinidad Fish Festival, which started out as a Crab Feed Beach Run, honoring founder Ford Hess, has been an annual event for 55 years until the 2021 winter race was canceled due to the coronavirus.

Tastin' Trinidad is another fall event and the Trinidad Chamber has tradition-the Greater Trinidad Chamber of mixers, monthly dinners, and has been supportive of the Thanksgiving Day Blesstors members Brett Shuler, Tracie Creps, ing of the Fleet and the Easter Egg Hunt with Trinidad Lions Club.

The Greater Trinidad Chamber of Commerce in its by-laws is set up to enhance the social, economic and civic life of the greater Trinidad area. Most of the events have been possible with the volunteer support of the entire Trinidad community including other service organizations and on the pier, since 1956. The Trinidad-Clam local businesses and even non-Chamber members.

A shrinking pool of volunteers and the COVID-19 challenges has caused the chamber leadership to consider options in keeping the chamber running. A possible merger with the McKinleyville Chamber of Commerce has been suggested. Allie Jones wrote to Chamber members after last week's meeting:

"The Greater Trinidad Chamber of Commerce board voted to begin discussions about the potential to merge our chamber with the McKinleyville Chamber of Commerce. While key challenges (lack of volunteers, inability to raise funds through events) have been amplified because of COVID, we recognize these challenges aren't new – they have been keeping our chamber from offering the support our community needs and deserves for awhile.

"We believe in the power of chambers of commerce to help our community thrive, and our decision was rooted in a desire to help our community and businesses.

"Right now, we are at the important stage of discussing this possibility with our current members. In light of COVID restrictions, we are doing our very best to make sure all voices and opinions are heard, and will continue to do so.

"I truly believe this merger would benefit the Trinidad community and presents opportunities to be stronger together, with more collaboration and support at a regional level. At the same time, it is extremely important to us all that we can ensure that nothing gets lost or neglected. I believe we can still have the time-honored traditions, beloved events, and community support with this merger and with the help of our neighbors and a renewed support from our community and other stakeholders.

"Please know that a merger does not need to mean the loss or end of the Trinidad Chamber, it would present opportunities for it to continue on, with dedicated subcommittees overseeing all chamber functions and initiatives. Our branding, marketing, events and community support don't need to end. But they will require volunteers and community engagement.

"I know some of you have valid concerns and questions. Many community members I have spoken to acknowledge that something needs to change, and we all want to figure out how to move forward in ways that honor the past and consider the future are important to us all. We will move forward slowly and deliberately, ensuring that our decisions take everyone's perspectives and needs into account."

Allie Jones ended her communication with an invitation to past and present chamber members to share viewpoints or join a subcommittee which will meet in early April. Email greatertrinidadchamber@gmail.com to find out more. You can leave voice mail at (707) 677-1610. The chamber's website is ExploreTrinidadCA.

Re-enter normal life with sweet Marvin at your side

It has officially been a year since Humboldt County went into lockdown. Our senior volunteers are beginning to return to the shelter as they complete their vaccinations.

It seems a little like the community is coming out of hibernation! Hoping that you are all well and that Spring will bring a slow return to whatever normal is going to be.

Today's featured pup is Marvin. You might remember Marvin as the scared and hairless dog that was found cowering in a parking lot in Eureka. He has been in a foster home (the one where he was met with a "Wellcome home Marvin" sign) for several months and has come such a long way since his parking lot time!

Marvin has been absolutely fabulous with the seven-year-old boy and the 10-month-old Jack Russell pup that live in the home. He loves his hang-out-on-the-couch time, even when Olive, the Jack Russell, is sitting on top of him!

Despite this love fest between dogs and boy, Marvin's foster has decided that they are not the perfect forever home for Marvin and so we are now putting him up for adoption.

Marvin's ideal home would include another young human buddy and possibly another dog as well. It would probably not include cats. Though Marvin has been living with cats, his interest is a little too high for a permanent home with kitties.

Marvin has demonstrated excellent food and toy behavior, with no resource guarding of any kind, even if interrupted when he is eating or playing. He has been working on his obedience and leash skills and has learned a lot. Marvin will use his crate without objection and is good in the house.

We have noted that Marvin is quite sensitive and very attuned to people and their moods. Our trainer met him and declared him to be "awesome!" She also noted that Marvin is quite sensitive and very attuned to people and their moods.

We would provide his new owner(s) with a session or two of training to help everyone get to know each other and keep Marvin on the training trajectory that has been started.

Sweet Marvin is a young adult, one to two years old. He is neutered and current on his vaccinations. His pretty golden coat will benefit from good food and the occasional bath to keep his skin healthy, but he is a good sport about bathing.

If you have a child that has been looking for that devoted canine buddy, Marvin could be the dog for you! Please contact us at redwoodpalsrescue@gmail.com or leave a voicemail at (707) 633-8842.
